Feedback

“What a great class and our professor was amazing. She taught us a lot.”

- Public Speaking Student 2014

“Ms. Silivanch was brilliant. She cared about her students and paid close attention to our presentations or questions after the fact. Her feedback was well informed. It was a pleasure having her for this course.”

- Public Speaking Student 2014

“She is a great teacher with a strong passion for what she teaches. I was very glad to have her as a teacher, and I recommend her to other students.”

- Research Writing 2013

“Annalise is a great resource. She provides an abundance of insight on real world work, politics, and preparation for job interviewing, marketing and research. Her feedback was extremely valued and provided me with a completely different perspective. I love seeing circumstances from “another seat in the house.” Bravo!”

- Business Writing Student 2014

“Professor Silivanch taught a well-planned, thoughtful class that clearly aimed for the kind of complex, nuanced thinking and writing that is the goal of the program. I know she was doing her best with students who were not particularly brave or inventive thinkers, and that these students would need a great deal of structure to feel comfortable. And that she did indeed create –a comfortable atmosphere where questions were welcome. Clearly, she understands and respects the goals of the program, and communicates them well to students, helping her students find their own way in to the academic project.

- Elizabeth Kimball, Director of College Writing

“As Campus College Chair for the College of Arts and Sciences here in Jersey City, I am happy to recommend Annalise. Annalise is one of our original team here at the Jersey City Campus where she has taught Communications and, in fact, lead the Communications faculty as Area Chair of the College of Humanities in 2009-2010.

“Annalise is a “triple threat” combining skills and a history of performance in:
1) teaching and facilitating our communications and humanities courses, 2) revising our curriculum to meet student needs and, 3) mentoring new faculty members.

“She also earned some of the highest student evaluations ratings the Jersey City Campus. She is widely respected by both faculty and administration. She is consistently good natured and dependable, often volunteering extra time to help a distressed student at the last minute (usually before some assignment is due)”.

- Dr. Robert Levit, former Campus College Chair, Jersey City campus, University of Phoenix
